KYLA R. OSBURN

ASSOCIATE

Kyla R. Osburn brings a background in corporate litigation and investigative work to her family law practice, helping clients navigate personal and complex legal transitions. She began her career as an associate at a major national law firm, where she focused on employment law and white-collar defense and investigations. This experience provided her with a solid foundation in managing complicated disputes and sharp attention to detail, which she now applies directly to her family law practice.

Kyla earned her law degree from the Georgetown University Law Center. During her time there, she was a member of the Georgetown Journal of Law & Public Policy and was fortunate to participate in the first cohort of the “Making an Exoneree” practicum—a hands-on project dedicated to pursuing justice for wrongfully convicted individuals serving life sentences.
